Wide Scope of Y. M. C. A. Told at Annual Dinner

Those Who Are Backbone of Local Organization Enjoy Auxiliary Chicken Dinner and Listen to Songs and Speeches—Larger Deficit Shown This Year.

Monday evening at 6:30 o'clock, the officers, directors, trustees and staff of the Y. M. C. A., with their wives met at the Y. M. C. A. to enjoy the annual banquet; to learn officially of the status of the local organization; and to listen to interesting and inspiring addresses and vocal selections.

Postmaster William C. DeWitt acted temporarily as master of ceremonies, and called upon all present to sing one verse of America, after which the "grace before meat," was said and a blessing asked by the Rev. William J. Nelson.

Then everybody enjoyed a roast chicken dinner that was both delicious and sumptuous, ladies of the Y. M. C. A. Auxiliary serving the same.

Mr. DeWitt then introduced Louis Schottle, who accompanied by W. W. Fredenburgh, entertained the diners with a vocal solo which was heartily applauded.

Before Postmaster DeWitt could really get under way as master of ceremonies for the evening, he lost his job, for former Mayor Palmer Canfield appeared upon the scene, and the urbane postmaster somewhat facetiously introduced him as the future district attorney, or at the least the assistant district attorney, and now, the president of the board of directors of the "Y."

Mr. Canfield complimented those present upon the gathering, composed of friends, through whom during the past years many other friends had been made. After further expressing his appreciation of the cooperation of the directors and trustees, officers and staff, in the past successful year, Mr. Canfield paid sincere compliment to Secretary Safford for his loyal and untiring efforts in behalf of the association; work in the building and in the wider field of the community. Then Mr. Canfield uttered a very timely and valuable warning for the "Y" and every other Christian organization and for Christian individuals to do all possible to uphold the dignity and majesty of the law, particularly in these days when there is such a serious disregard of certain laws, that all law and order suffers. The warning especially took note of the need of helping the next generation to become law-abiding citizens, if we have any due regard for the future stability and progress and success of this nation. After thanking all who had worked in the past for the success of the Kingston Y. M. C. A., Mr. Canfield urged greater cooperation and renewed efforts on the part of all for the future.

Following another heartily applauded song by Mr. Schottle, Mr. DeWitt called attention to the financial report, on behalf of the treasurer who was not able to be present, and urged a further reduction in the mortgage and increase in the endowment fund. The financial report is as follows:

S. E. Eighmey, chairman of the nominating committee, after expressing his appreciation of the services of former Mayor Palmer Canfield, Jr., as president of the board of directors, announced the nomination of N. H. Fessenden and A. K. Rose to succeed themselves and the choice of Dr. C. D. Carter, P. H. Carey and Dr. Frank L. Eastman as directors to fill the vacancies created by the expiration of the terms of Louis Beeres, H. S. Ensign and Palmer Canfield, Jr. The report was accepted and the election of these men followed.

Secretary Safford who was so cordially commended for his services was next called upon for a brief address, and it was brief. It consisted of Mr. Safford's expressions of appreciation of the cooperation afforded him in his work; of the tremendous help given him by Mr. Canfield; of the earnest cooperation of the directors and trustees; of the capable and most helpful assistance of the Woman's Auxiliary, with especial complimentary mention of Mrs. Longyear, the president; of the excellent work of the very competent staff and of the aid given by the ministers of the city. Mrs. Safford's remarks called forth much applause.

There were two out-of-town speakers present, and the first to be introduced was the state boys' work secretary, William Burger, who evidently believed that the best way to make plain the success of Y. M. C. A. boys' work was by giving examples of boys whose entire future success had been made possible by "Y" influences.

First Mr. Burger told of a New York boy who had lived in the congested part of New York city, crude, and possibly "fresh," who was persuaded to go to the Y. M. C. A. Camp at Lake Champlain way back in July, 1897. That camp appealed to this 14-year-old youngster so for two or three years he went to the "Y" camp in summer and to the New York "Y" in winter. He caught a vision out of it all, and determined to make all he could of himself. He went to preparatory school and to Yale in 1906. In 1908 he became director of that camp at Lake Champlain. Last July 7, on the anniversary of this lad's first visit to the camp, there was a great celebration there in his honor, and the camp with its mile of shore line and itself now like a fine old preparatory school, gave a supper for the guest of the day. There was four remarkable but brief addresses made and the chief was presented with a beautiful gold watch in appreciation of his services, his interest, his influence; this man who as a boy was employed there as a dish washer, then as chief of the staff of dish washers. While no one can say where this boy would have been now without the "Y" influence it is easy to see where he is because of that influence.

Mr. Burger said there were three misconceptions as to boys' work in the Y. M. C. A. The first was that the work for boys was confined to the four walls of the building when in reality that work today reaches out and gets a grip on boys who would never be reached in indoor work itself. The second misconception was that the boys' work was circumscribed and limited to the exclusive "Y" interests and activities. In reality the boys' work reaches out

WIDOW SUES FOR HUSBAND'S LOSS

Mrs. Fred C. Harding Demands $20,000 Damages for Death of Husband at Hands of Moses Schoonmaker—Case Being Tried in Supreme Court in Newburgh.

The Newburgh News says:

Jennie R. Harding, the 26-year-old widow of Fred C. Harding, sat in Supreme court here Monday morning holding in her arms her youngest child, born on January 20 last, twelve days after his father's death, when trial of the suit against Moses Schoonmaker for $20,388 for the killing of Fred Harding was begun.

Nearby sat her aunt, Mrs. Arno Hedden, the second youngest Harding child resting in her lap. Perched on chairs between the two were the older Harding children, ruddy-faced, rugged boys, wearing rompers of blue denim.

The widow, a slight and comely young woman, with regular features and just a tinge of color in her cheeks, was attired in deep black As the trial progressed she advanced to a seat beside her lawyers, Earle H. Houghtaling of Walden with Anson J. Fowler of Newburgh of counsel, just in front of the judge's bench. The three older boys went out into the hallway, where they romped and gamboled, utterly unconscious of the gravity of the occasion and its possible bearing on their young lives.

Harding, a man held in considerable esteem among his neighbors, had served two terms as highway commissioner of the town of Gardiner, Ulster county, and filled other town offices. He was 42 years old at the time of his untimely death, and left four children: Fred J., aged 6 years; Vernon M., 5; Elwood V., 4; and Juanita Jane, one year old. A posthumous son, Wesley, was born January 20.

At the session on Monday the work of selecting the jury to hear the evidence was taken up, and the case opened.

Harding was shot and killed when he visited the Schoonmaker home at Walden at an early morning hour.

"BILL" SNELLING, PEACEMAKER

Jail Threat Quiets Wrangling Family Heads.

Two prominent business men on North Front street got into a wrangle over each other's children about 4 o'clock Monday afternoon and during the fracas their loud words attracted the attention of Special Officer Snelling who works in E. Hoyt Green's store. He ran over with his coat wide open displaying his shield of authority, jumped between the combatants, one of whom had a boot as a weapon and the other a chair or stool. "Bill" told them to desist or he would take both of them to the jail. After listening to the officer's advice they both went their way peacefully, but in opposite directions.

CASES READY FOR SUPREME COURT

First Trial Begun Is Action of Cornell Against Fricke for Damages in Auto Collision.

Supreme court reconvened at the court house Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock, after a recess from Friday, May 5, Justice Charles E. Nichols presiding, who called the day calendar as made up by Clerk Geroldsek Saturday noon, and it proved to be a good one as but two cases that had been put on were marked off, being Nos. 2 and 133. No. 146 was ordered placed on the bottom of the calendar with the understanding that it would be ready when reached. No. 100 was moved over the term, and it was announced that No. 21 had been settled. By request of attorneys in the cases Nos. 43 and 2 were put on the day calendar on the call of the calendar today at 12:30 by Justice Nichols. No. 218 was held open.

The day calendar is as follows being cases ready: Nos. 183, 168, 107, 115, 184, 210, 77, 94, 164, 172. No. 218 was held open.

No. 183, William Cornell against Carl Fricke, was then taken up for trial. William D. Brinnier and William D. Brinnier, Jr., for plaintiff; DuBois Gillette for defendant; John W. Eckert of counsel. This is a negligence case, plaintiff suing for damages sustained to a Hudson touring car through a collision that occurred on October 21, 1921, with a Nash car owned by Carl Fricke. The collision occurred on the concrete highway leading from Saugerties to Catskill where the road turns out toward Malden. Plaintiff alleges defendant's car ran into his car at the left front side at the triangular curve while he was on the right hand side of the road causing damage to the amount of $400, as plaintiff's car was laid up forty-eight days for repairs. It is also alleged by plaintiff that immediately after the accident that defendant stated to him that he was sorry for the collision and gave as his reason that his brakes failed to work.

Defense is that plaintiff was to blame and the accident occurred by reason of such negligence. That he, the defendant, was going from Cairo to New York with three others in his Nash car and was proceeding at a reasonable rate of speed. That he was on his right side of the road and was proceeding south on the right hand side of the triangular curve in the road as it turns toward Malden; that Mr. Cornell, the plaintiff, cut the corner and was not on his (plaintiff's) right hand side when the cars collided. Defendant puts in a counterclaim for damages to his automobile to the amount of about $190 for repairs.

After the jury had been secured and case opened by counsel, Justice Nichols excused all jurors and talesmen not engaged in the case on trial until this morning at 10 o'clock.

William Cornell, plaintiff, the first witness called, testified as to how and where the accident occured, and photographs of the scene were introduced, and other witnesses for plaintiff called. At 5 o'clock the plaintiff rested and a recess was taken until this morning at 10 o'clock.

Justice Nichols called the calendar as made up Monday afternoon, at the opening of supreme court this morning in order to see if any changes were desired. No. 168 was placed at the foot of the calendar, and Nos. 202, and 83 to 89 put over the term.

No. 100 was put over on motion of John W. Eckert, who appeared for John R. DeVany, attorney for defendant, C. D. Divine, on the ground of the illness of Dr. Wilklow, a material witness Palmer Canfield, of counsel for plaintiff, opposed as the case had been put over at the previous term for the same cause. Plaintiff, who is Nathan Zasler, is suing for damages for injuries sustained in an automibile accident, it being a negligence case. Justice Nichols on reading of an affidavit as to Dr. Wilklow's illness, put the case over the term on consideration of defendant paying the term fees, and on the further condition that the testimony be taken within twenty days by deposition before a referee, the day to be set by the attorneys and if not the court will set the day. He appointed County Judge Joseph M. Fowler as referee to take the testimony.

The trial of No. 183, Cornell against Fricke, was then resumed. Carl Fricke, defendant, being called as the first witness. He testified to the accident, said he was on the right side of the road, that the plaintiff's car struck his car on the left front side, yanking it diagonally to the center of the road and doing the car much damage. That his car was in good shape at the time, that he did not tell anyone that the brakes did not work, as had been claimed by a witness for plaintiff, and that there was no car ahead of him at any time and no car to the point of the accident until several minutes later. That three others were in his car with him.

Clearing up Site for Big Dam at Old Rifton Powder Mills Which Will Back Wallkill up to Dashville—Dam Top Will be 110 Feet Above Normal Height of Stream.

Work preliminary to awarding the contract for the biggest hydro-electric development in this part of the state is now in progress at Rifton and it is the expectation of the engineer in charge that by July 1 everything will be in readiness to award the contract. This is the second and most important part of the plans of the United Hudson Electric Corporation for developing power from the Wallkill in the vicinity of Rifton. The first part of the project, the generating plant at Dashville Falls, on the site of the old Demarest mills, has been completed and in operation for some time.

The dam and generating plant further downstream will be on a much larger scale and will develop much more current. The dam will be located on the site of the old Laflin & Rand powder mill dam, a short distance above the point at which the Wallkill enters the Rondout. The top of the dam will be 110 feet above the normal height of the stream and impound the waters of the Wallkill to such an extent that when the reservoir is filled the slack water will extend to the foot of the falls at Dashville. This will not only supply a much greater head of water than at Dashville, but will afford storage that can be filled in time of low demand and utilized for generating current when the demand is greatest

The two power sites formerly used by the Dimick carpet mills will be under water and the water power at the Rifton grist mill will no longer exist.

The work now under way is in the nature of clearing up brush, loose rocks, top soil, etc., at and above the site of the new dam, and a number of men are employed.

This development is one of the projects of the United Hudson Electric Corporation that will be financed by the sale of bonds recently authorized by the Public Service Commission. It will result, as stated a few days ago by The Freeman, in making Kingston the center of a great hydro-electric power system and ensure not only the continuance of existing low rates for electric current, now used, but supply a much larger demand than now exists, at continuing favorable rates. Kingston being the nearest city to the point from which the power comes. It will also add another beauty spot to the vicinity of Kingston, the reservoir to be created adding greatly to the scenic attraction along the Kingston-Rifton road. Already many city people are buying or building summer homes in that vicinity and with the added attraction of a beautiful lake Rifton will without doubt grow into a most attractive and prosperous summer suburb.

The construction of the new dam and plant will be in charge of Frank B. Maltby, an experienced engineer of high standing who has had 35 years of active experience in the field and has had charge of or been associated with the construction of many much larger enterprises of this nature. Mr. Maltby was connected with the building of the Salmon river dam in northern New York, and with the building of dams for the state barge canal. He was principal assistant to John S. Stevens, chief engineer of the Panama Canal, and during the World War was a lieutenant-colonel of Engineers in the U. S Army in France, at the time of the armistice being in charge of work on which 25,000 men were employed.

VETERAN MOUNTAIN CAMP.

Government Didn't Accept Land and House at Willow.

Mrs. B. Franklin Cross has returned to Willow after spending the winter in New York. During the winter Mrs. Cross has been associated in a literary and executive capacity with the campaign to secure a mountain home for ex-service men who are disabled and for whom the government has not made provision.

The Barbour estate on Big Tupper Lake, in the Adirondacks, was selected because it has buildings and equipment for about 100 men. In the forest reserve around it, "lean-tos" or log cabins may be built for tubercular patients who are convalescing.

"It was a matter os surprise to many," says Mrs. Cross, "that there are over 10,000 ex-service men for whom the government is not yet making provision. There are many others who seemed to be well when discharged from the service, but who have since developed tuberculosis or other diseases. Government aid is not extended to such cases because the technical proof of injury in the service cannot be made clear.

"The American Legion is going a fine work in starting the home at the Barbour place, and it is likely that other homes will be found necessary in New York and many other states."

Captain Cross, who is a Spanish War Veteran, offered the 300 acres of Crosspatch Farm and the Community House as a free gift for disabled soldiers, but the federal government, while approving the site, did not seem in a position to use the place, although the offer was made over a year ago.

Mrs. Cross, under her pen name "Eva Mac Donlad Valesh," wrote a letter to the women of the country for the mountain camp in the Adirondacks and several thousands of dollars were received at only the expense of postage and paper in sending the letter to a large number.

In the past few weeks Mrs. Cross has been in an executive position assisting Lieut. Maynard, the "flying parson," who had charge of the appeal in New York city. Parson Maynard performed the wedding ceremony above the clouds for a young couple and thousands of radio fans listened to the ceremony. This and other publicity stunts in the flying and radio field, by the "flying parson," attracted much public attention to the veterans' mountain camp and will mean many subscriptions.

Lieut. Maynard and his wife are shortly to be guests at Crosspatch and will make the trip by aeroplane if a landing field can be found nearby.

The campaign for the mountain camp will be taken up throughout the state within the next few months.

LAWYER'S FEE EATS UP ALIMONY

Bouton's Charge for Representing Mrs. Haynes Too Much, Says Judge Hasbrouck—Now She Has Another Attorney—Haynes Behind in Payments.

A case with some unusual features which was heard by Judge Hasbrouck at Saturday's special term of the supreme court was that of Hazel Haynes against Addison Haynes, a Sullivan county divorce suit, which came up on an order requiring Eugene L. Bouton of Livingston Manor, attorney for Mrs. Haynes, to show cause why he should not be required to turn over to her the alimony which he had collected from her husband.

Milton O. Auchmoody, who appeared for Mrs. Haynes, told Judge Hasbrouck that Mrs. Haynes had aroused his sympathy by her story that her husband had paid $88 alimony to Mr. Bouton but that Bouton had paid her only $16 of that amount. She was the mother of five children, said Mr. Auchmoody, and one of the children soon would have to undergo an operation for which Mrs. Haynes was unable to pay.

Mr. Bouton told Judge Hasbrouck that Judge Rosch had allowed him only $25 counsel fee, which was a very small amount, and of that amount Haynes had paid only $20. Haynes also had been ordered by Judge Rosch to pay alimony at the rate of $8 a week, but had paid only $88 alimony and was behind in such payments. He had paid only $16 of the $88 alimony to Mrs. Haynes he said, but he had agreed to take the case for Mrs. Haynes under an agreement that he was to be paid $150 for his services.

On behalf of Mrs. Haynes, Mr. Auchmoody said that Mrs. Haynes had claimed the agreement was that Mr. Bouton should take the suit for whatever money he could get out of it in counsel fee.

"I would be a fool to take a case in Sullivan county like that," said Mr. Bouton. "My understanding with her was that I should get $150."

"That is too much," said Judge Hasbrouck.

Mrs. Haynes was in court and Judge Hasbrouck said he would like to question her. She came forward.

"You must pay your lawyer something," said Judge Hasbrouck to Mrs. Haynes. "You know you cannot be mean to your lawyer."

"Certainly not," replied Mrs. Haynes. "I don't want to be, but I have five children to look after and one of them has to have on operation soon at the home of a relative in Wappinger's Falls."

"Haven't you any doctors in Sullivan county who might be willing to do it?" asked Judge Hasbrouck.

During the further discussion, it developed that the case has not been tried yet, which Mr. Bouton said was due to the fact that the Sullivan county roads had been in bad condition and Mrs. Haynes expected him to look up the witnesses. She had told him she had the evidence of one witness, but the corroboration which she said she had was "not there." He was willing to have any other lawyer take the case.

"You agreed to try this case, and you must do it," said Judge Hasbrouck to that suggestion.

It developed also during the discussion that although Haynes had paid $88 alimony to Mr. Bouton, he was $56 in arrears. Of the $88 which had been paid to him, he still had $72. Judge Hasbrouck directed him to retain $36 of that amount and to pay Mrs. Haynes $36.

A further suggestion was made by Mr. Bouton that he was willing to withdraw from the case and that he doubted whether Mrs. Haynes could produce corroborative evidence, but Judge Hasbrouck told him to proceed to trial at as early a date as possible before Judge Rosch.

Later in the day, however, Mr. Bouton withdrew from the case and a stipulation was made by him that Mr. Auchmoody be substituted as attorney for Mrs. Haynes.

MILTON.

Milton, May 8.—The Ladies' Needlecraft Society of the Presbyterian Church will hold a food sale in the Community House Saturday afternoon, May 13, from 3 to 5 o'clock. There will be biscuits, bread, pies, ice cream and ice cream cones for sale.

Supervisor Edward Young has succeeded in obtaining an appropriation of $11,000 for more road work in this town on the south road from Lattintown to Marlborough. All that the road commissioner has done on the road this spring was to put one wagon load of dirt in a washout. All that has been done on Sands avenue this spring was the scraping of dirt from the sides of the street into the middle of the road and carting it away. Some slate soil was put on the road at Baty's corner making this spot worse than it was before. Our roads now are not kept in as good condition as they were when our taxpayers did the work themselves. Judging from the amount of road taxes our residents have to pay each year it seems strange that so little work is done on the roads to keep them in good condition.

There was a large attendance at the W. C. T. U. institute meetings held in the Presbyterian church last Wednesday and Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Herring of Ulster Park and Mrs. Grace Degraff of Esopus attended the W. C. T. U. meeting here last week.

The women who know the practicability of short skirts, collarless necks, flexible corsets, can appreciate the advantages of Cantilever Shoes.

These shoes are, in the first place, good looking. The spring shoe styles are so sensible that Cantilever Shoes are stylish. They're graceful, well shaped shoes; finely made; reasonably priced.

LIGHT AND FLEXIBLE.

And they harmonize, like good pals, with the active life of the modern woman! They're flexible, easy, efficient—full of pep and go. They fit your feet, let the toes bend, the arches flex. They add wings to your walk.

Cantilevers are flexible like youth—not stiff like old age. They keep the well foot well by permitting good circulation and exercise of the foot muscles. They support a weak arch like a bandage round the instep and allow nature to strengthen the foot through the simple exercise of walking.

Can You Answer These Questions?

1. How do toads drink?
2. Where did the potato come from?
3. Why do roosters always crow between eleven and twelve every night?

Answers to Tomorrow's Nature Notes.

Answers to Previous Questions.

1. At what season are young minks born, and is there more than one litter?

In April, either in a burrow or hollow of a log or stump. One litter. Young are tiny, blind like kittens. In captivity the litter has been known to number as high as ten kits, but five to six is the natural family.

2. Does the ostrich have any note?

Yes, a loud one, somewhat resembling the voice of the lion, in spite of the fact that the ostrich has an imperfectly developed syrinx, or set of vocal rings. The explorer Livingston noted that the voice of the lion and that of the ostrich were easily confused in the wilderness.

3. I have a fern which this winter has been infested with a small black fly. I find lots of little white insects in the plate on which the fern stands. What are they, and what is the remedy?

Probably the "fly" is the winged male of one of the aphids that infest many indoor plants. The smaller light colored creatures may be the grub or immature form that keeps hatching out. Impossible to identify without a specimen. A slow but good way to treat is to use either soapsuds, or nicotine solution, with a camel's hair brush, and patiently swab off the insects. Be sure to examine the under sides of the leaves.

OPINIONS IN MIGNANO CASE

Majority of Justices Think He Was Not Too Quick to Shoot in Self Defense and New Trial Is Granted Because of Error at First.

Copies of the prevailing and dissenting opinions in the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court for the Third District in the case of The People against Sam Mignano, who was convicted in Ulster county court last November of manslaughter in the first degree and sentenced to imprisonment in the Clinton state prison at Dannemora for a minimum of six years and a maximum of twelve years, which were handed down at Albany last week, have been received by District Attorney Traver, on the part of The People, and by ex-Mayor Palmer Canfield, Jr., who argued the appeal for Mignano.

The prevailing opinion of the court under which Mignano gets a new trial for killing Joseph Marzia at Malden on July 10, 1918, was written by Justice Michael T. Kiley of Cazenovia, and is concurred in by Justices Cochrane, Kellogg and Vankirk. The dissenting opinion was written by Justice Harold J. Hinman of Albany.

Opinions Diametrically Opposed.

The prevailing and dissenting opinions of the court are diametrically opposed to each other and because Mignano's defense was that he killed his victim in self defense the opinions will be read with more than ordinary interest.

The majority of the judges of the Appellate Division lay down the opinion that in not taking a chance of being attacked, Mignano "adopted the wiser course," while Judge Hinman in his dissenting opinion is unable to convince himself that Mignano did in fact act in self defense as that act is defined in the statute and has been interpreted by the courts, and says that "He did not do all in his power to avoid the necessity of shooting and had he done what was within his power there was no imminent danger of any design to injure him being accomplished."

Ground of Reversing Judgment.

The ground on which the judgment of conviction is reversed is that Mignano did not have a fair trial in that neither District Attorney Traver nor County Judge Joseph M. Fowler told the jury that evidence drawn out of Mignano on his cross-examination regarding a previous shooting in which he had indulged was for the purpose of effecting his credibility as a witness.

The Prevailing Opinion.

The prevailing opinion of the court is as follows:

Kiley, J.

It is conceded in this case that the defendant in this action, on the 10th day of July, 1918, killed Joseph Marzia by shooting him; the bullet entered the head over the left eye. Defendant fled the jurisdiction of the court; the crime was committed at Malden, Ulster county, N. Y. On the 11th day of May, 1921, he was indicted by a grand jury of that county, charging him with manslaughter in the first degree. Upon the trial under that indictment he was convicted as charged and sentenced to not less than six nor more than twelve years in state's prison. This appeal is from such judgment of conviction. The defendant admitted the killing but urged that the homicide was justifiable, that he shot in self defense.

For sometime before the shooting defendant and his family and deceased and his family lived in a double house on property known as the Staples brickyard near Malden, Ulster county; both families had small children, a lady in the neighborhood gave to the defendant's boy a box of trinkets, among which was a small chain or piece of one. Marzia's wife claimed that the chain was one they brought from Italy and that defendant's son had stolen it. Defendant offered to wager and did wager a dollar that the woman in the neighborhood gave the chain to his boy. Then defendant and Marzia went to the woman's house and asked her and she confirmed defendant's claim. Marzia offered to pay the dollar but defendant refused to accept and Marzia said he would buy the beer, he started toward the hotel in the neighborhood, went there, defendant followed and both bought drinks. Defendant started toward home, Marzia followed overtaking defendant some little distance toward their home along the state road.

They had an altercation, called each other's wives and each other liars; defendant swears that Marzia came toward him fumbling at his hip pocket and he, defendant, took the revolver from his side coat pocket, where he was in the habit of carrying it, that Marzia was twelve or fourteen feet from him and facing him and coming toward him, that he told him to go home. Marzia stopped turned away, the defendant standing still and still presenting his gun. Marzia turned again, came toward him with raised hand or hands, and when withing eight or nine feet of him he fired striking him as aforesaid over the left eye, piercing the brain. Marzia fell to the ground was alive but unconscious when approached a few minutes after by one living in the neighborhood, he had a razor clasped in his right hand. He was taken to a hospital and died that night from his injuries.

Defendant fled going to New Jersey and staid there for over two years, when he had his wife procure an attorney for his defense and then returned and gave himself up, surrendered to the authorities of Ulster county. His excuse for running away given under oath, he went upon the stand in his own defense, was that he was afraid of the dead man's friends—he could not tell who they were, but claimed to be impelled to run with that idea. Both parties were Italians. The evidence in full, as only briefly reviewed here would support a verdict of acquittal. The jury found otherwise, were the jurors influenced in reaching that verdict by certain evidence and the attitude of the court and district attorney with reference thereto, claimed to be error upon this appeal? It is as follows:

District attorney cross-examining the defendant: Q—Did you while living at Newburgh, before you went to Mechanicsville, draw a gun and shot at John Delaya? Mr. Canfield: Objected to as incompetent, improper and immaterial. The court: Overruled. By the court: Answer yes or no whether you shot at this other man? Ans.—Yes. By District Attorney Traver: Q.—Did you hit him? A.—I want to tell you. Q.—Did you shoot him? A.—Yes; I want to tell you the truth why I shot. Q.—When you shot, immediately after that, did you go away from home and go to Mechanicsville? A.—I didn't run away, I moved up there. Q.—Did you go to Mechanicsville? A.—When I shot I left the man; two or three shots. Q.—When you shot you left? A.—I no can hurt him, I just scared him, no shells in gun, just fired to scare. Q.—Wasn't the reason why you shot at him, because you thought he was too friendly with your wife? A.—He talking to somebody else. Q.—Wasn't that the reason you shot at him, or wasn't it; was the reason you shot at John Delaya because he had been trying to so something to your wife? A.—He was, before that, somebody told me all the time, and I want to scare him. Q.—After you shot at him where did you go? A.—Mechanicsville. Q.—You went up there alone? A.—I went alone after a week or so. Q.—After a while your family come? Mr. Canfield: He is entitled to finish his answer. District Attorney: I am not obliged to take everything the witness says in answer to my question. The court: Go ahead. Q.—After you shot at this man you went to Mechanicsville? A.—I go to Mechanicsville. Q.—Right away? A.—Sure, right away." After considerable questioning of the same kind without any objection from defendant's counsel, the following took place: "Q.—You didn't go back to Newburgh? A.—No. Q.—You never have been back there since? A.—I don't remember. Q.—Have you been back, or haven't you, or, don't you know? A.—Didn't go to Newburgh any more after I left."

I think it may be held that all of this evidence harks back to the objection made and above quoted, and that it is all tainted with the same vice, if vice there be. The question presented is this, was it competent to give evidence of a separate and distinct crime committed by the defendant, other than that charged in the inictment? The Newburgh incident dates back many years before the crime and time alleged in the indictment. In People vs. Molineux (168 N. Y. at page 293 of the opinion), Judge Werner, after discussing the question of permitting evidence of crimes other than that alleged in the indictment, says: "Logically, the commission of an independent offense is not proof in itself of the commission of another crime. Yet it cannot be said to be without influence on the mind, for certainly if one be shown to be guilty of another crime equally heinous, it will prompt a more ready belief that he might have committed the one with which he is charged; it, therefore, predisposes the mind of the juror to believe the prisoner guilty."

This is quoted by the judge from Shaffner vs. Commonwealth (72 Pa St. 60) and he then proceeds as follows: "The exceptions to the rule cannot be stated with categorical precision. Generally speaking, evidence of other crimes is competent to prove the specific crime charged when it tends to establish (1) motive; (2) intent; (3) the absence of mistake or accident; (4) a common scheme or plan embracing the commission of two or more crimes so related to each other that proof of one tends to establish the others; (5) the identity of the person charged with the commission of the crime on trial." Wharton on criminal evidence (9th ed.) Sec. 48; Underhill on evidence, Sec. 58; Abbott's Trial Brief, criminal trials Sec. 598.

I think we may go one step farther and hold that when the defendant goes upon the stand in his own behalf, he may be interrogated upon cross-examination as to any crimes he had theretofore committed, but for the sole purpose of effecting his credibility as a witness same as a defendant in any other action. People vs. Johnson (186 A. D. 248), and cases cited. Judge Miller in People vs. Pettanza (207 N. Y. 560) shows the vice of bolstering up a case, not strong primarily, with evidence of this kind. Assuming the most favorable attitude we can toward the evidence criticised, viz. That it might have been offered to effect his credibility, the jury is no where advised of that fact. The district attorney did not so state when he offered it, and the judge did not refer to it in his charge. The argument of the district attorney when he presented The People's case to the jury is reported in the record in full. He did not tell the jury that the evidence of the Newburgh affair was given to them to effect the defendant's credibility. On the contrary, his argument in that regard was to the effect, that having committed that crime and admitted it, it was evidence that he committed the crime with which he was charged. He approached the subject as follows: "The story told by the defendant reminds one of a very old proverb, to all familiar: 'He who fights and runs away, may live to fight another day,' and I am going to paraphrase that and say, the defendant's story reminds me of what I am going to paraphrase in this case, as 'he who shoots and runs away may live to shoot another day.' This is followed with observations on this line of testimony justifying the assertion that it was not introduced to effect the credibility of the defendant but in support of the crime charged in the indictment. The closing paragraph of the discussion upon that subject is significant in denoting its purpose: "I say, he shot and ran away that time, and the evidence in this city, from his own lips, warrants that statement, and having shot and run away the first time, he imagines, perhaps, he can pursue the same tactics the second time, and he shot and ran away the second time.'" The evidence and the argument of the district attorney was to the effect, that the defendant was criminally inclined; that shooting was his rule rather than the exception, and that it was potent evidence of his probable guilt of the specific crime charged against him. The case was too close to hold that such evidence did not influence the jury; a very good foundation existed and was laid for an acquittal on the plea of self defense.

The defendant's reputation came through the ordeal much better than that of Marzia. Defendant was 44 years old and the other 26. Defendant left the hotel for his home alone and ahead of the deceased. He followed and started the quarrel. Marzia had been informed by an uninterested party that his claim to the chain was wrong—he was irritated and made the first advance, the defendant the one other disinterested witness swore his hand was up before he was shot. Defendant swore he could not tell if he had anything in his hand; but he knew the favorite weapon of the Sons of Italy. He warned him to go home; Marzia hesitated, turned, but returned to the attack, his hand still up, the older man stood still covering his assailant with his gun, and still telling him to desist—he came on the defendant and shot him, and when he fell a razor was clasped in his right hand.

It is urged that the defendant should have avoided the shooting, but in the light of later events, it might have been dangerous; Marzia was the younger man, with a razor in his hand, and defendant's back turned in an effort to escape the race might well have been won by the younger man. The jury could well have found that the defendant had the right to refuse to take the chance, and that he adopted the wiser course. The trial was not fair, the defendant did not have a fair chance, the least of which chance he should have had, would have been for the court in his charge to the jury, to have said, that the evidence of the Newburgh incident was not received for the purpose of proving the guilt of the defendant, but to let them say whether it affected his credibility.

Judgment should be reversed and a new trial granted.

The Dissenting Opinion.

The dissenting opinion of Justice Harold J. Hinman of Albany is as follows:

Hinman, J. (dissenting):

I favor an affirmance of the judgment of conviction. The defendant has taken a human life when in fact he was in full command of the situation. While he was not required to exercise the best judgment that the situation required of him when viewed in the light of what we know to be the facts, nevertheless I am not in favor of relaxing the wise rule laid down in People vs. Kennedy, 159 N. Y. 346, where the court said of the self defense rule, "Before a party can justify the taking of life in self defense he must show that there was reasonable ground for believing he was in great peril; that the killing was necessary for his escape, and that no other safe means was open to him. When one believes himself about to be attacked by another, and to receive a great bodily injury, it is his duty to avoid the attack if in his power to do so, and the right of attack for the purpose of self defense does not arise until he has done everything in his power to avoid its necessity." See also People vs. Koeping, 178, N. Y., 247, 253.

Many of our rules of justice mean injustice in some individual cases, but are necessary in order that justice may prevail in the average case. They are laid down for the protection of society and if we relax them we encourage irresponsibility which is one of the faults in present day law making and law enforcement. It may well be that the defendant believed he was in great danger but I am unable to convince myself that he did in fact act in self defense as that act is defined in the statute and has been interpreted by the courts. According to the defendant's own account he was too precipitate. It was only 7.30 in an evening of early July when the days are longest. He says it was light and all the evidence in the case indicates the same thing. Other witnesses saw plainly for a distance of at least 100 feet. The deceased was moving slowly, walking. There was no sudden movement. The defendant makes no claim that he saw anything in deceased's hand that he believed to be a revolver. There is no foundation for the argument that defendant thought the razor was a revolver. Deceased was 8 or 9 feet away when he was shot. The deceased could plainly see the revolver in defendant's hand. If the razor was in deceased's hand the defendant could have seen it. I believe it was in his hand. It was found there. Nobody but deceased or defendant could have put it there. I cannot believe that deceased found it and grasped it after he was shot in the brain, which must have caused instant unconsciousness. I believe the fair deduction to be made is that defendant did actually see the razor and was seized with an impulse to shoot which he did; but the deceased was not within striking distance and the defendant with his revolver was in command of the situation. He could have retreated. He could have warned that he would shoot. He did not do all in his power to avoid the necessity of shooting and had he done what was within his power there was no imminent danger of any design to injure him being accomplished.

His flight after the shooting tends to reveal his own sense of guilt. His fear of Marzias' friends or of the "black hand" is apparently an artifice since he did voluntarily return and gave himself up. The matter of his self defense was a plain question of the fact for the jury and their finding is well sustained by the evidence.

Six years or less in prison is none too much penalty for the needless taking of a human life. Even if in an individual sense of justice to defendant he might be excused for having believed himself in danger, I believe the law should be vindicated by his punishment as an object lesson to others. The law recognizes no apology for undue haste. There must be reasonable ground for believing that one is in peril and in addition there must be imminent danger of the threatened injury being accomplished. (Penal Law, Sec. 1055).

Having reached the conclusion that the facts do not warrant a reversal of the jury's holding that defendant did not act in self defense, the question raised as to his former shooting affair is not so serious. The defendant's character and reputation for being "always peaceable" had been put in issue by the defendant's character witness. He was on the stand himself and was subject to cross-examination as to any vicious or criminal act of his life (People v. Hinksman 192 N. Y. 421, 433). The extent to which this may be carried is discretionary with the trial court and will not be reviewed in the absence of an abuse of discretion (People v. Webster, 139 N. Y. 73, 84-85).

The evidence elicited showed that instead of being a peaceable citizen he had previously resorted to the use of this same deadly weapon which he had unlawfully possessed for years, to redress a personal wrong, that his explanation of his use of blank cartridges on that occasion was unsatisfactory in view of his having fled the city of Newburgh right after the shooting and that he never returned to that city. No exception was taken to the remarks of counsel in summing up and no ruling or charge was requested and no question of law is presented for review. (People v. Slover, 232 N. Y. 264, 270; People v. Cummins, 209 N. Y. 283, 293; People v. Keller, 186 A. D. 534, 536). The remarks of the district attorney were not unjust to defendant. In fact I see no reason for the application of any principle of abstract justice in behalf of this defendant. He had able counsel and a fair judge. I say this from personal knowledge of them. None but the established rules should be applied. This is not a death case (Code Crim. Pro. Sec. 528). Errors which do not affect the substantial rights of the defendant must be disregarded (Code Crim Pro. Sec. 542). The result was just in my opinion and the sentence was most moderate.

I favor an affirmance.

To Make Rich Red Blood

Revitalize your worn-out exhausted nerves and increase your strength and endurance

take Organic Iron, not metallic iron which people usually take, but pure organic iron—Nuxated Iron—which is like the iron in your blood and like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples. One dose of Nuxated Iron is estimated to be approximately equivalent (in organic iron content) to eating one half quart of spinach, one quart of green vegetables or half a dozen apples. It is like taking extract of beef instead of eating pounds of meat. Nuxated Iron is partially predigested and ready for almost immediate absorption and assimilation by the blood, while metallic iron is iron just as it comes from the action of strong acids on small pieces of iron filings.

Over 4,000,000 people annually are using Nuxated Iron. It will not injure the teeth nor disturb the stomach. A few doses will often commence to enrich your blood. Your money will be refunded by the manufacturers if you do not obtain satisfactory results.

Beware of substitutes. Always insist on having genuine organic iron—Nuxated Iron. Look for the letters N. I. on every tablet. Sold by all druggists.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

THE STONES

"There are some creatures who have said they have had serious things said about them, or that expressions have been made about them, or sayings, which haven't been correct at all," the big stone said. "Now I have something to complain about."

"We Always Stay."

"What?" asked the other stone.

These two stones were on either side of the head of a garden bed.

"I will tell you," said the first stone, "for I do not think it is fair, and I am wondering what you will think about it.

"I am eager to know what you think; very eager, indeed."

"I will tell you," said the second stone, "when I hear what you have to say.

"As yet, of course, I have no idea what I shall think."

"Of course not," said the first stone.

"Pray continue with what you have to tell me," said the second stone.

"But there is no hurry," said the first stone. "We always stay in just these two places. We never move. In the winter we let the snow cover us, and we do not object, nor do we go off into the house by the fire, as people do."

"That is so," said the second stone. "And why should we go into the house where there is a fire? In the first place of all, we can't walk. We haven't any legs or feet and we can't fly. We haven't any wings.

"And we can't swim in, because we aren't fishes. And, besides, there isn't any water about in the winter to swim in.

"If there were any water we couldn't swim in it. We can't skate in, either.

"So why should we go in when we can't?"

"Why should we, indeed?" said the first stone. "And that is why I say there is no hurry in doing anything. If we had engagements it would be a different matter. Then we would have to hurry.

"Suppose I had to be at an office every day—or at school—then I would have to hurry. Or, suppose you had to go to a tea party or to a sewing circle, you'd have to hurry, without a doubt."

"Do they always sew in circ asked the second stone.

"I don't think so," said the first stone. "From what I've heard, a sewing circle means simply a number of people who have gathered together to sew."

"Foolish to call it a circle,' the second stone

"Foolish, indeed!" agreed st stone.

"And," the first stone continued, "I will tell you now what has been said about us which has not been true.

"Folks are always saying that things are stone cold. They speak of a glass of lemonade as being stone cold, or they speak of something which should have been hot and they say:

"'Why, it has become stone cold.'

"They evidently think stones are always cold."

"They almost always are," said the second stone.

"But not always," said the first stone.

"Not always," agreed the second stone.

"You see," said the first stone, "when the sun shines upon us in the summer we become hot, very very hot. I wish people who think that stones are always cold would feel us on a summer day when the sun has been shining upon us.

"Stone Cold."

"And so I say that there have been untrue things said about us."

"That is so," the second stone agreed, "and if I had a heart it would hurt me, but I haven't any heart at all. You've heard people speak of a heart like stone. That means a heart which is hard like a stone and which isn't really a heart at all."

"True," agreed the first stone. "It really doesn't bother me what they say when I haven't any feelings at all.

"I may complain, but my feelings can't be hurt, as I haven't any feelings at all, at all."

April Showers.

Tommy's uncle asked him the name of Mary's young man.

"I call him April Showers," replied Tommy.

"April Showers!" cried his astonished uncle. Whatever makes you give him such a ridiculous name?"

"Because he brings May flowers," Tommy explained.—The Scotsman.

WHAT TO EAT

On the farm or where one has plenty of milk and cream there is little appreciation of cream except as a butter maker. There are so many delicious dishes which may be made from sweet cream, not forgetting the whipped cream cake which is the cake par excellence.

Cream Muffins.—Mix two cupfuls of flour, four teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one half teaspoonful of salt and a table spoonful of sugar. Add the cupful of sweet cream, beat thoroughly and bake in muffin tins in a hot oven. One-half cupful of chopped dates may be added, if desired.

Cream Pastry.—For a covered pie take one and one half cupfuls of flour mixed with a quarter of a teaspoonful each of salt and baking powder. Mix with sweet cream to make a mixture just stiff enough to roll.

Quick Griddle Cakes.—Stir a pinch of soda and one-half teaspoonful of salt into a cupful of sour cream. Add flour for a thick batter and beat until perfectly smooth. Thin with sweet skim milk to the desired consistency; it should be like good cream. Lastly stir in two teaspoonfuls of baking powder and bake at once on a hot griddle.

Cream Cookies.—Beat two eggs until very light, add one and one-half cupfuls of sugar, a quarter of a teaspoonful of salt, a little grated nutmeg. Stir in a cupful of thick cream, two cupfuls of flour, mixed with four teaspoonfuls of baking powder and enough flour added to roll. Roll one-quarter of an inch thick, sprinkle with sugar, cut in shapes and bake quickly.

Buttermilk Pie.—Take one cupful of sugar, one tablespoonful of butter, two tablespoonfuls of flour, one egg, a pinch of salt, two cupfuls of buttermilk with flavoring to taste. Soften the butter, cream it with the sugar, add the flour and mix again, then put in the salt and an egg unbeaten. Beat these ingredients very light and add the buttermilk and flavoring. Cook the mixture until thick, then pour into a pastry shell previously baked.

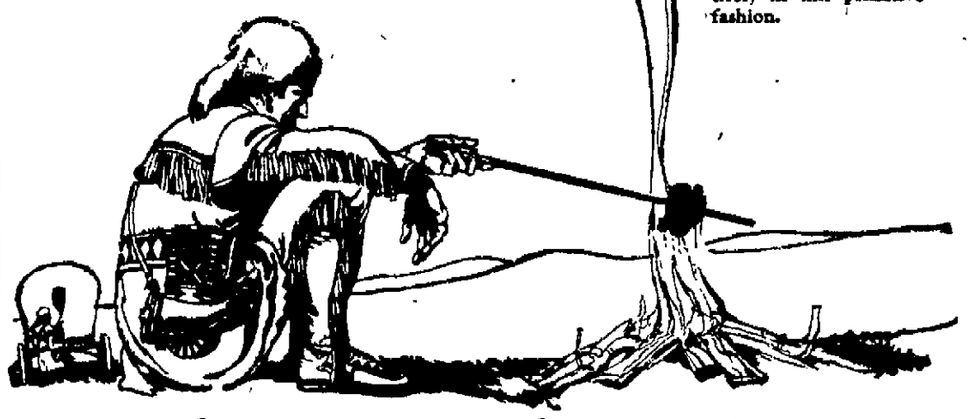
Wheelbarrows Climb Stairs.

One of the interesting sights of the city of Changsha in China, is the wheelbarrows which climb stairs. Some distance ahead of the regulation wheel there is another smaller one. In climbing over flagstone steps or bridges, the handles of the wheelbarrow are lowered until the auxiliary wheel rises above the next higher step. Then the wheelbarrow, which often carries 300 or 400 pounds, see-saws from wheel to wheel until the next level stretch of flagstones is reached.

A Cock-and-Bull Story.

This is the term of an impossible tale. Many ingenious explanations have been suggested, but the phrase really dates from Matthew Prior (1664-1721) —"Cocks and bulls and flutes and fiddles. Idle tales and foolish riddles."

In the days of the early American pioneers broiling was done almost entirely in this primitive fashion.



Perfect Broiling
not the tedious process it used to be

WITH the New Perfection Broiler you can broil a 3-lb. steak perfectly in 20 minutes. There is no smoke or odor as in the case of broiling over coal or gas—no burning fat. You don't have to touch the steak or turn it. The heated air circulates all round and sears the steak (or fish, as the case may be) thoroughly on the outside, thus retaining all the juices.

Every kind of cooking can be done easily and economically on a New Perfection, and it is a real all-the-year-round stove, too.

Broiling, preserving, baking, roasting, boiling and frying—a tender steak, delicious jams, crisp molasses cookies, a savory roast of beef, stewed tomatoes, or a quick fry of bacon and eggs. All done easily—no trouble with drafts—no drudgery with coal, wood and ashes.

Ask your dealer to show you how simple the New Perfection is to operate.

New Idea for Water Float.

Something new in the way of a float for sportive aquatic exercise is the invention of a New Jersey man, James M. Maroukis. It may take the form of a giant duck or any other creature that is at home in the water. The body of the duck has a covering of canvas, appropriately painted, and is filled with cork. Through the middle of it is a hole big enough to enable the user to put the contrivance over his head and beneath his arms. Straps fastened to the under side of the duck are passed and secured between the user's legs, furnishing him with a support for his person and giving the affair proper attachment. For the latter purpose other straps on top pass over his shoulders. The tail of the duck is provided with a ring, so that a cord may connect it with another duck following behind. If desired, there may be a whole string of them.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Sulphur Needed in Soil.

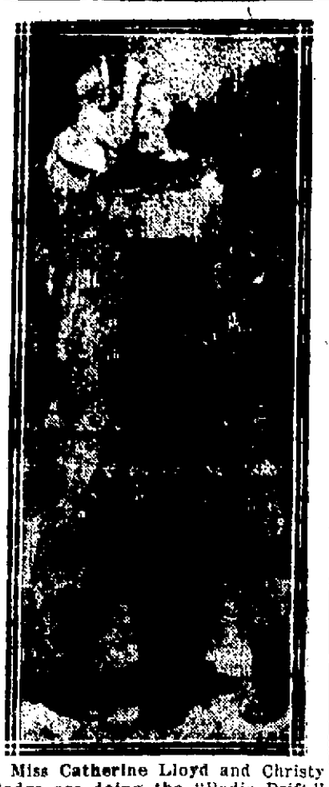
Experiments made in this country are regarded as proving the generally prevailing theory that sulphur in the soil is of little value for promoting fertility as compared with phosphorus and nitrogen, is erroneous and that sulphur is, in fact, of vast importance. Continuous cultivation, together with insufficient fertilization, causes a large annual loss of sulphur, which cannot be compensated from the atmosphere, and little is brought up by capillarity from the subsoil. The experimenters, therefore, recommend the application of fertilizers containing sulphur to lands which are frequently cropped. The failure hitherto to recognize the great value of sulphur in the soil is ascribed to faulty analytic methods employed by early investigators.—Washington Star.

Gay "Bajanellas."

We seldom hear the word "suffragette" in these days, writes a correspondent; but the advance of women continues to have its effect on the dictionary. The newspapers tell us that among the charges brought before a mock students' court at Aberdeen was that of "writing notes in class to bajanellas." The bajanella is an unknown creature in England, but in Aberdeen she is the feminine of bajan or bejan, which is itself a term originally imported from the University of Paris to designate a freshman (bec jaune, yellow beak, in allusion to young birds). The word has been in use for over twenty years. It is now obsolete in Edinburgh, but apparently lingers, with its variation, further north.

Washington Leaving His Officers.

There is an old book my grandchildren love to hear me read to them. It is the "Morte d'Arthur," done into English by Sir Thomas Malory. Often when I read therein of how Arthur the King bade farewell to the world and to the last of the great company of his Knights of the Round Table, this scene at Whitehall Slip comes back to me, and I seem to see once more those gallant soldiers, and far away the tall figure of surely the knightliest gentleman our days have known.—Hugh Wynne, in Weir Mitchell's "Hugh Wynne, Free Quaker."



Miss Catherine Lloyd and Christy Rodge are doing the "Radio Drift." Music for the dance was furnished by the radio. Notice the receiving set attached to the cars of this Chicago couple.

MAY DRAIN GREAT MARSHES

Proposed Scheme Would Add Three Million Acres of Arable Land to Mesopotamia.

A scheme has been proposed in Great Britain for the draining of the extensive marshes along the River Euphrates, thus irrigating 3,000,000 acres of the barren lands of Mesopotamia. That there is plenty of water to serve such purpose, if rightly directed in proper channels, seems probable from the examination of the Babylonian marshes by Willcocks.

The stream by which the investigator's steamer entered the marshes was narrow and in some places nearly covered with vegetation. They took the wrong branch of the river and the boat stuck fast in the mud, where the party remained all night in a wilderness of waters enveloped in a cloud of mosquitoes. Some of the party smoked, some covered themselves up, while the seamen, as usual, got up on the rigging to avoid the pest. It was no use. The insects penetrated everywhere and everything.

There was something so new and striking about these vast marshes that the scientists almost forgot the mosquitoes. All about them was water in which grew reeds, flags and tall grasses. Mires or lakelets were interspersed with great patches of white lilies, and stately pelicans sailed about as though proud of the undisputed possession of such safe and tranquil retreats. On the grassy spots grazed an occasional buffalo. Islanded in this wilderness of waters was seen now and then the reed tomb of a holy man.

The long-limbed beings who inhabit the marshes live as much in the water as out. They can get at their buffalos only by wading up to their middle in the water, and their rice grows in a swamp. One scientist reports having seen a baby swung in a cradle suspended from the roof of a reed hut, while the waters flowed unimpeded through the hut itself.

Life Insurance a By-Product.

Life insurance is an outgrowth of the custom of insuring ships and cargoes, practiced by the owners from olden times. They would insure against the loss of the ship through the death of the skipper. These policies were issued by individuals before companies came into existence.

Here are shown exclusive pictures of the two Chinese generals who conducted the Chinese war. Both with Presidential aspirations, Wu Pei-Fu and Chang Tso-Lin headed troops and engaged in bitter battles. Many lives were lost. Wu Pei-Fu, known as the "savior of China," was the victor. Chang Tso-Lin, "Mukden war lord," is said to be in flight on a battleship.

To Make Rich Red Blood

Revitalize your worn-out exhausted nerves and increase your strength and endurance

take Organic Iron; not metallic iron which people usually take, but pure organic iron—Nuxated Iron—which is like the iron in your blood and like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples. One dose of Nuxated Iron is estimated to be approximately equivalent (in organic iron content) to eating one-half quart of spinach, one quart of green vegetables or half a dozen apples. It is like taking extract of beef instead of eating pounds of meat. Nuxated Iron is partially predigested and ready for almost immediate absorption and assimilation by the blood, while metallic iron is iron just as it comes from the action of strong acids on small pieces of iron filings.

Over 4,000,000 people annually are using Nuxated Iron. It will not injure the teeth nor disturb the stomach. A few doses will often commence to enrich your blood. Your money will be refunded by the manufacturers if you do not obtain satisfactory results.

Beware of substitutes. Always insist on having genuine organic iron—Nuxated Iron. Look for the letters N. I. on every tablet. Sold by all druggists.

FURNITURE

THERE ARE TWO KINDS

ONE kind of furniture is mere rubbish—the kind that looks pretty well on the surface. The kind that the manufacturer takes a chance on, using a little glue where a dowel pin should be used—hiding a defect with a pinch of putty "because it will never show," using a light brad where a screw belongs, and putting on a fake finish to give the piece the appearance of something it is not.

This kind of furniture is made for profit—not for you. We never buy it, neither should you.

Another kind—well-designed, honestly constructed furniture—workmanship and woods that will endure for generations. Furniture of integrity—the only kind we will buy and the only kind you ought to buy. There is nothing that conveys the truth like your own eyes—don't buy blindly—use them!

AMOS VAN ETTEN IN HISTORIC PLACE

Law Offices Now Occupied by Him Were Scene of Many Important Legal and Political Conferences.

Amos Van Etten has removed his law offices from the Warren building on Fair street to the State of New York National Bank building at the corner of Wall and John streets, which until recently were occupied for a number of years as a music studio by W. Whiting Fredenburgh.

The offices to which Mr. Van Etten has removed were occupied as law offices for many years before Mr. Fredenburgh's occupancy of them as a studio. For many years they were occupied by the late Frederick L. Westbrook, who was Mr. Van Etten's predecessor as counsel for the New York Central, West Shore and Wallkill Valley Railroads. Mr. Westbrook's son, the late District Attorney F. Arthur Westbrook, was associated with him in the law business for many years under the firm name of F. L. & F. A. Westbrook.

Prior to that time, the Westbrook firm was composed of Frederick L. Westbrok and his nephew, the late T. Beekman Westbrook, under the firm name of F. L. & T. B. Westbrook, be- ... which time the latter's father, Judge Theodoric R. Westbrook, was in partnership with Frederick L. Westbrook and they occupied the same offices.

Up to a quarter of a century ago the Westbrook law offices now occupied by Mr. Van Etten were the scene of many of the most important legal conferences held in Ulster county. Political conferences of the greatest importance also were held there as Judge Theodoric R. Westbrook for many years was the acknowledged Democratic leader of Ulster county and Frederick L. Westbrook represented the faction of the party in the county whose affiliation was with Tammany Hall.

The bankruptcy court for this section will also be held in the offices in the State of New York National Bank building before Mr. Van Etten, who has been referee in bankruptcy for a number of years.

City Counsel Attacks Powder Company, Wit- Bills and Commissioners' ation Claims.

Big Bills For Witnesses.

In attacking various items in the expense bills submitted by the company, Mr. Black said he objected to the bill of Edwin Burhans for $700, being a bill for 70 days' services at $10 a day. He had testified only seven days and for part of this time should be allowed $10 a day and part of the time $13 a day. At least twenty-two days of Mr. Burhans's time had been spent on the business damage claim for which the commission had no right to make an award, and he also had spent time in searching records in the county clerk's office for which there was no justification.

Other bills to which Mr. Black objected included one of Prof. Horton for $1,800 for testifying two days and bills of more than $500 for three assistants who did not testify; Prof. Laudreth charged $453 and testified one day.

Profitable Days' Reading.

The claims of the commissioners for compensation also came in for criticism from Mr. Black. The number of days charged for by the commissioners, exclusive of the day they organized, was as follows:

Charles R. Hall.....43 days
Frank J. LeFevre.....50 days
Dillon B. Humphrey.....49 days

The time claimed by the commissioners to have been spent in reading testimony was as follows:

Mr. Hall .....31 days
Mr. LeFevre .....32 days
Mr. Humphrey.....31 days

Of this time, said Mr. Black, the commissioners claimed to have spent 26 days in reading 2,200 pages of testimony in the business damage case when the appellate division had said the powder company had not sustained any business damage, but in spite of which the commissioners had made an award for business damage.

While it is a well known fact that it takes no longer than three minutes to read a closely printed page, said Mr. Back, an anaysis of the commissioners' bills showed that they read only forty-five typewritten pages of testimony a day.

"It makes a difference whether a person reads with the mind or only with the eye," said Judge Hasbrouck.

"That is true," replied Mr Black, "and that applies also to exhibits, and there is no objection to the commissioners charging for time spent in reading testimony which was stipulated into the record provided they read it at the same rate it would have taken Judge Van Etten and myself to have actually read it aloud to them. And that applies also to the exhibits. For the days necessarily spent in their work, the city does not object to the fifty dollars a day, which, I understand, is the usual rate of pay allowed."

Where Does Hall Live?

In conclusion, Mr. Black said he had been informed that Commissioner Hall was not a resident or freeholder of New York county as the water supply act required, but he had not had time to look it up.

County Attorney John W. Eckert, who appeared for the commisioners, after consulting with Mr. Hall, said that Mr. Hall had voted in New York.

"If he is not a freeholder, it would invalidate the report," said Mr. Black.

"Did you raise that question before?" asked Judge Hasbrouck.

"I didn't know it," said Mr. Black.

"Why do you raise it now?" asked the judge.

"I consider it my duty to the city of New York," said Mr. Black.

"It would seem as if you had waived it," said Judge Hasbrouck.

"But I didn't know about it until now," replied Mr. Black, "and I don't really know it now."

"You should have found out," said Judge Hasbrouck. "You should not wait until you are about to reap the benefits of his service and then object."

Mr. Eckert, in reply, said there was absolutely no question about Mr. Hall's qualifications. He had voted in New York and the statement that he was a freeholder there was contained in his affidavit which had been made when application was made for an extension of time for the commission. The day spent by the commissioners in reading testimony and examining exhibits, he said, had all been spent in the office of the corporation counsel in the Keeney theatre building.

Judge Hasbrouck took the papers and reserved decision.

According to Herodotus, the Egyptians shaved continually and only let the hair and beard grow when they were in mourning. The barber of the ancient Egyptians was known as the haq. He employed various instruments. A razor sometimes in the shape of a small, short hatchet with a recurved handle and other instruments shaped like a knife were most generally used.

The Kingston mother took her baby to be christened. The clergyman, who knew her personally, dipped his pen in the ink and prepared to fill in the necessary papers.

"Certainly not!" said the indignant mother. "We've only been married three years."

WHY CITY BOY HAS MORE STAMINA

But Experiments at Citizens' Military Training Camps Show General Health of Country Boy is Superior.

Although it is commonly believed that the country boy is more rugged than the city youth, statistics compiled from experiments made at last year's Citizens' Military Training Camps show otherwise, according to a survey of the camps made public yesterday at Governor's Island.

In athletics and in marches the youths from the city have as a rule shown more stamina, the report states, but it adds that in general health the country boy is superior, this being due to the fact that he lives so much in the outdoors.

The report adds:

"The young man from the country has a natural advantage in his healthful surroundings, but taking this more or less for granted, he seldom seems to try to build up his body by concentrated exercise. On the contrary, the city boys, surrounded by high buildings, with comparatively little air and other deleterious conditions due to crowded conditions, takes to exercise whenever he has the opportunity. In this way while the city youth is at a disadvantage he usually turns this handicap to good use by overcoming it by exercise and healthful play."

This condition will be taken into consideration when the Seven Citizens' Military Training Camps open this year, it was stated yesterday. Some of the best known athletic instructors in the country have volunteered to give their assistance in planning this feature of the instruction at the camps which open August 2 and close August 31.

An Unwelcome Dance.

Lady Constance Stewart Richardson, whose bizarre dancing made her known in America, was married recently in oriental dress. There is a story about her and the duchess of Marlborough.

Once, at a charity concert at one of the great houses of London her host whispered to the duchess:

"We're to have an extra number. Dear Lady Constance has consented to do her barefoot Persian dance."

"Oh, dear," the duchess cried. "I knew when I spilled the salt at dinner that something dreadful would happen before the night was over.

THE REV. MR. CLARK PROTESTS TEXAS LYNCHINGS

Calls For Support For Dyer Bill In Congress.

The Rev. E. O. Clark on Sunday evening delivered at the Franklin Street A. M. E. Church an address on "Liberty." Mr. Clark cited the inalienable rights of life and liberty and said that in pursuit of the happiness of these rights and liberties the government is instituted by the people and for the people and for the protection of all the peoples. It was for the cause of civil right, equity and justice that stirred the heart of the fathers; to set themselves free from the yoke of British tyranny that the historic pen of John Hancock signed the free state independency which document closed with the protection of divine providence, that liberty that dealt the British a heavy blow and instituted by Divine providence has been abused, first by slavery and second, by disfranchisement, under the institution of a bonded union that came about through the Civil War. The stain of slavery had been declared wiped off the slate of slave holders by the emancipation proclamation and the fourteenth and fifteenth amendment enacted for the man of color giving him equal civil rights and undiscriminated privileges in the erection of a country that was destined to become—and has become, the greatest country in the world. But that privilege and the fourteenth and fifteenth amendment have been in many instances, ignored, or sidetracked. If we are to stand for the ideal of our country and to live up to the principle of that ideal liberty that spells freedom is instituted by the hands of our government and for the protection of the weak as well as the strong should be strongly enforced by proper laws. Lynching and burning of human beings in a civilized and gospel land is an act of barbarism that is shocking the eyes of the world, that if further continued we may be asked to recall our missionaries to do home work. I call the attention of this congregation and to the colored voters of this city, that we adopt a resolution and forward it to our senator without delay for the support of the Dyer anti-lynching bill that is now with the senate in the committee room. The enemies of this bill are working day and night to defeat it. The bill if adopted will make punishable not only those that are committing these atrocities or taking the laws into their own hands, but will make punishable the officials that are to enforce the laws against male violence who wilfully neglect their official duty. I also ask this congregation that a telegram be sent to the governor of Texas for the speedy arrest and punishment of all those concerned in the burning of the three negroes at Kirvin, Texas, and that proper investigation be made of the alleged crime of Snap Curry and two other negroes involved and the two white men now in custody for the same crime in which the three negroes were burned. I also ask our local newspapers to print small type of crimes, rather than glowing head lines to these outrages and to give space to negro intelligence which is somewhat slighted but focus by crimes. The influence of the press will greatly help to lessen crime, why not use it.

The resolutions will be adopted at the meeting of the Eureka Lyceum of the church on Wednesday evening.

Besides the trial debate, to be given by the Eureka Lyceum on Wednesday evening at the Franklin Street A. M. E. Zion Church other big things are promised.

The leader of the negative side of the question, "Resolved that capital punishment be forever abolished in the United States," is Clarence A. Van Derzee, instead of Ruth McKinnon as at first announced.

RACHEL BALL IS DISCHARGED

Complaint That She Sold Them Booze Was Not Sworn To By Negroes and Prosecution Admitted Its Weakness—Canfield Appears.

Rachel Ball who conducts a small store at the corner of the Strand and Hasbrouck avenue, who was arrested about a week ago by three Federal Prohibition enforcement officers for violation of the Volstead act on the complaint of two negroes who alleged they had purchased of her a small quantity of liquor for $1.80, and who had been placed in the custody of Roscoe Irwin, her attorney, to await a hearing before U. S. Commissioner D. B. Deyo, was arraigned Monday. Mrs. Ball was represented by Isidor Sampson who appeared for Mr. Irwin, her counsel, who made a motion for her discharge on the grounds that the two negroes who were the complaining witnesses were not present and that their complaint on which the raid was made was not sworn to.

Palmer Canfield, Jr., who appeared for the government at the hearing, did not oppose the motion for Mrs. Ball's discharge and Commissioner Deyo discharged her from arrest. U. S. District Attorney Canfield was of the opinion that the matter was one that might come up under the Mullen-Gage act, and that it would have been thrown out by the Federal District court in New York if brought before it without a sworn complaint signed by the complaining witnesses.

LOCAL DEATH RECORD.

Recent Deaths and Funerals of Persons in This Vicinity.

John DeVall died at Creek Locks Tuesday morning. Notice of funeral later.

Julian Liptovich, aged 21 years, died in this city Friday, May 5. The funeral will be held from the parlors of Leo V. Grogan on Wednesday. Interment at Forest Glen, Maryland.

U. S. Grant Brink died Monday at Central Islip, Long Island. The remains will be brought to this city Wednesday. The funeral will be her from the residence of his sister, Mrs. James Brown, 56 West Strand, on Thursday afternoon, at 2 o'clock. Interment in Wiltwyck cemetery.

The funeral of John J. Reynolds, who died in this city on Thursday morning last, following a serious operation performed a short time ago, was held from the home of his sister, Mrs. Bernard Quinn, at 61 Van Buren street on Saturday morning at 9 o'clock and from St. Joseph's Church at 9:30 o'clock, where a high Mass of requiem was celebrated for the repose of his soul by the Rev. Charles McCabe. Mr. Reynolds was well known in this city and leaves a large circle of friends and relatives. The funeral Mass was very largely attended and at the conclusion of the Mass Mrs. Raymond Garrison very feelingly sang "That Beautiful Land on High." The casket bearers were members of the family. The remains were interred in the family plot in St. Mary's Cemetery, where the Rev. Joseph Cushman conducted the services.

At 9:15 o'clock Monday morning the funeral of Cora Shader Purcell, who died at her residence, at 207 Downs street on Thursday morning last, following a few days illness from blood poisoning caused by a sore throat, was held from the home of her parents, at 7 Clinton avenue and at 10 o'clock a solemn Mass of requiem was sung for the repose of her soul at St. Joseph's Church, the celebrant of the Mass being the Rev. Charles J. McCabe, the deacon, the Rev. Joseph Cushman and the subdeacon, the Rev. Martin P. O'Gara, pastor of St. Mary's Church, Saugerties, N. Y., and formerly assistant pastor at St. Joseph's. The fact that Mrs. Purcell was loved and respected by practically the entire community, was proven by the hundreds of friends who viewed the body as it lay in the family home. Mrs. Purcell was connected with the sales force at the L. B. Van Wagenen Co. for a long time. She was very talented and possessed of a voice of a very rare degree, and had appeared in the leading roles of a number of local plays and entertainments. Her marriage took place with J. Paul Purcell, manager of the Netburn clothing store, eight months ago and her sudden and unexpected death came at the age of 20 years. The room in which the body of Mrs. Purcell lay in the family home was a beautiful bower of flowers. The funeral cortege was exceptionally large and the church edifice was completely filled with relatives and friends. Besides her husband and parents the deceased is survived by three sisters, Jane and Mary at home and Mrs. William Whitney and three brothers, Stephen, Frank and Edward. During the funeral Mass the choir was assisted by Miss Bessie Cusack and at the conclusion of the Mass Mrs. Raymond Garrison, in a most touching voice sang "Face to Face." As the body was being borne from the church the full choir sang "A Message to the Sacred Heart of Jesus." The casket bearers were J. Harold Cunningham, John McManus, Raymond Purcell, James Carroll, William Schatzell and Joseph Purcell. The remains were laid to rest in the family plot in St. Mary's Cemetery, where the Rev. Joseph Cushman conducted the services.

Uncle Sam's Auction Room.

The United States has become the world's auction room. Hardly a day passes that does not see art treasures of the old world sold on the block to be carried to homes throughout the United States. A great auction was recently held in New York which included the household furniture and art objects from some of the oldest homes in Great Britain. A brawny young man of Canada dressed in rough tweeds was present at this sale and when an English refectory table was offered for sale he put in the first bid. Other bidders appeared, but they did not have a chance. The Canadian got it for five hundred dollars.

He approached the table and said: "I am the youngest son of the family selling this table. I sat at it many times as a youth and it is going back to Canada with me."—Wall Street Journal.

Pleasure for Many.

The "botanical ascents" of Mount Katahdin by an American investigator suggested the possibilities of intellectual entertainment and agreeable acquaintance with nature that are offered by easily ascended mountains. Not only the person having some knowledge of botany enjoys this rapid change of surroundings, but a similar pleasure is in store for the geologist, who sometimes finds that a mountain is like a prepared section of a part of the earth's crust; for the entomologist, who discovers different insects at the top from those that inhabit the lower slopes; for the ornithologist, who finds that birds have preferences as to elevation, and in fact for all students of nature.—New York Herald.

Jazzed Ice Cream.

A newly patented invention is "aerated ice cream." It is, however, more accurately described as just the opposite, the air contained in the mixture being withdrawn from it by a vacuum pump, after which carbonic acid gas is forced in under pressure. It is then frozen, and has the same sort of "bite" as that which makes fresh soda water so agreeable to the palate.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Not Becoming, Perhaps.

No woman is so angelic as to prefer a halo to a hat.—London Opinion.

A heated campaign for Moderator is expected when the annual General Assembly of the Pres[byterian] Church (North) meets in Des Moines, Iowa, May 18. Grouped about Dr. Henry Chapman Swearingen ent Moderator, are five prominent church leaders, who will be candidates for the place. They a[re] John B. Laird, Philadelphia; Rev. W. O. Thompson, Columbus, Ohio; Rev. Hugh T. Kerr, Pittsburg[h] Cleland McAfee, Chicago, and Rev. C. C. Hays, Johnstown, Pa.

Night and Day Work Brings American Food, Seed and Medicine To Save Millions of Russian Li[ves]

Working night and day to the limit of their endurance, American Relief Administration forces in the famine region of Russia are breaking the back of the famine and are reaching every district of the Volga Valley, according to word reaching America from Moscow. American corn, for which Congress appropriated $20,000,000 late last December, is being fed to the limit of the rail transportation possibilities of the country. Fully 5,000,000 adults are benefiting from the feeding, while more than 2,000,000 children in Russia have been saved from death by famine, as a result of the work of American agencies. This program is being executed despite the grave difficulties of transportation, which include a constant clogging of junction points.

Col. William N. Haskell, director for Russia of the A. R. A., in a report to Herbert Hoover, chairman of the relief organization, tells how long lines of sled trains, laden with food, are traveling hundreds of miles. When the American corn arrived in Kazan on April 2, haste was redoubled to move the supplies before the Spring thaw could make the frozen roads impassable with mud. The workers got 3,200 horses and an adequate number of sleds together, and man and animal alike were worked to the limit of their endurance to reach every district with this food.

Medical supplies, both from the $4,000,000 surplus of governm[ent ...] voted to the A. R. A. by Con[gress and] a $3,600,000 fund provided [by the] American Red Cross, are also [going to] Russia in huge quantities to [over]come the effects of disease and [...] which accompanied the fami[ne.]

The lower picture shows a [train of] sleds, ninety in all, which [are] about to leave the A. R. A. [at] Kazan on a journey which [will carry] food to a district a hundred mi[les away.] This was an every-day [sight in] regions far beyond rail lines. [The up]per pictures show some of the [...] at an A. R. A. kitchen smi[ling their] gratitude for the food which [they re]ceive in their cans; and som[e of the] medical supplies in the hands [of Rus]sian porters.

WIDE SCOPE OF Y. M. C. A. TOLD

into the home and church. And the last misconception was that the "Y" interests itself only with the boys of good homes and those whom we call the more favored boys. Today the boys' work reaches out after the less favored boys in homes that are really both repulsive and expulsive, where the boy is thrown out into the street for everything but eating and sleeping. And more and more there is being put forth effort to reach out to the working boys and young men and thus to exert the only vital influence for better labor conditions at the right end of the problem, with the youths.

Nor is the "Y" now confined to our cities; it has gained a strong and valuable foothold in the rural districts and Mr. Burger very interestingly told of a visit last winter to one of the rural "Y" camps.

Mr. Burger told, in closing of another boy whom the "Y" had interested in a small up-state town, and who was also interested in his Sunday school and church. He determined to become a physician, and went to college with that intent. In the middle of his medical college year he was made an intern in a big hospital near his college and on his graduation received the appointment as house surgeon at the same hospital. Now, this fall, after a year in that hospital he is going to India, where the impetus that he received from "Y" and church will carry him forward to added success, if apparently buried to the world, as a Christian servant of men.

The second speaker was Arthur Rugh, very recently returned from China where he has been engaged in Y. M. C. A. work of an amazing sort.

Alluding to the fact that we are coming to realize more keenly that the countries of the whole world are now neighbors, Mr. Rugh read an editorial from the New York Times that told of the irreconcilables now having become reconciled to the fact that America can no longer hold aloof from her world neighbors, and taking note of the fact that we have become international in spite of ourselves.

This is a new era of epidemics, economics and reconstruction. It is an era of epidemics because they cannot have typhus in Asia without Kingston, N. Y., U. S. A. being anxious. It is an era of economics for today the economic conditions of Russia, Poland, China, etc., bear directly upon the economic conditions of the world. But the speaker counted America to be fairly adaptable and therefore fairly likely to meet world conditions rightly.

Mr. Rugh was very happy over the present, as he called it, "Splendid turmoil" in China, wherein, so far, the democratic people have won out against the militarists. As he expressed it, China is now struggling to fit its life into a new mould, and if it succeeds that mould will impress the life of China for generations to come.

Now there are four shapes which that mould may take; militarism; and dangerous socialism; Bolshevism and Christianity. It is of vital importance to the whole world which of these four forms of living one fourth of the human race takes up, for China is one fourth of that human race. Militarism is not wanted by the new democracy of China; the very leader of this present uprising is against it, though successful and is quite willing to have his rank taken away if a newer and better order of living can be taken up.

Then Mr. Rugh told of the danger of syndicalized socialism, giving as a concrete example the story of an industrial plant in China, capitalized by foreigners who having the raw material—cotton—at hand, also labor cheap beyond the dreams of avarice, and no labor laws to bother with, had in one year made a profit that exceeded their total capitalization. Where would that lead to? An ugly industrial upheaval.

Then the outlook toward Bolshevism was made uncomfortably plain, especially the dire menace that would be to the whole world.

As Mr. Rugh saw it, from his life in China, there was but one way out, and that was Christianity, as the mould and he warned his hearers that America would have to hurry up and implant in China quickly such a vital Christian church, showing modern speed and magnificence of interest and intent that the other three forms of future life for China would stand no show whatever. He was sure America could do it but it would have to be done quickly to be of avail.

There were two things which the Young Men's Christian Association could do to help in the matter. The first the speaker designated as a big return on an investment of expenditure in China. China badly needs Y. M. C. A. secretaries, for it is ready and can furnish its own means to support associations. And Mr. Rugh gave astounding statistics showing how in five years a "Y" in China had beat a "Y" in America during the same time, by figures that were surprising. He told of a most successful Y. M. C. A. and of two budgets ready and made ready by the Chinese, awaiting the starting of two other "Y"s today. He made it exceedingly plain that at this form of Christianity can change the life history of China, offering as it does new methods of interesting the young manhood of China. Where formerly Christianity was scorned it was now possible to interest the young men in the athletics, the games, the general life of the "Y" and thus to make Christianity appealing to them. Mr. Rugh's own first work in China had been with a "Y" Bible class of seven boys, not in any way a remarkable class. Yet it had resulted that those seven boys had become seven men holding world influence. What would it not count for the world that they had become Christian men?

The speaker put it up to his hearers that it is of vital importance to the United States as well as to China to see to it that Christianity is the mould to be adopted by China for the future. He counted America the richest land in the world; in fact too rich in money, unless it becomes as rich in spirit and willing to use some of its vast wealth toward the furthering of spiritual things. Christ must be in the hearts of men making for unselfish lives. So and so only, the greatest day of the Christian Church is ahead of it, when China and the whole world shall have a part in the love of Christ. That and that alone will be for the saving of the nations.

All felt that the Rev. Mr. Cranston had voiced the feeling of every one present when he said, following Mr. Rugh's address, that it had impressed him as showing a most wonderful spirit as did the men himself; the only solution of the world's problems of today. Unfortunately no newspaper report could do justice to Mr. Rugh himself or his message which was filled with a vital spark of Christian understanding and desire for big service.

With another solo from Mr. Schottie, the meeting and banquet closed.

REGULAR PERIODS OF FAMINE

Every Seven Years Starvation Threatens Indians and Eskimos in the Canadian North.

Every seven years starvation stalks in the Northland. The snowshoe rabbits die. And just as surely as they die, so do the Eskimo and the Indian of northern Canada.

It was in one of these fatal years that Alanson Skinner, curator of the Milwaukee museum, entered the Hudson Bay country on an exploration trip for the American Museum of Natural History, the Milwaukee Journal reports.

Arriving at Moose Factory, he was surprised at the stories he heard. Every hunter and every trapper from the wilds brought them back.

The natives were dying by hundreds, literally starving to death. It was a case of the survival of the fittest. Should a man turn his back upon even his best friend for a moment, he was apt to be killed. Cannibalism was rife.

Skinner saw many gruesome sights as he pushed on from Moose Factory to Rupert's, the last outpost. At one time he sat down to eat beside a French trapper who arrived at Rupert's. He noticed that the man watched him with a strange light in his eyes. He left the table, but on looking back, found the man's eyes were still fastened upon him.

"What ails that fellow?" he inquired of an Indian.

"He eat human flesh once of cousin Frenchman and Indian guide," the native explained. "Now he crazy. Must have more all time."

Skinner was mighty glad that he had not encountered the crazed Frenchman alone on the trail, he said.

JAP GIRLS EAGER TO LEARN

Devote Little Time to the Pleasures So Dear to Hearts of Their American Sisters.

Never a dance do the Japanese girls shimmy at. Never a class do they "cut" to get a hot fudge. "Dates" are as scarce with them as galoshes on a summer day.

All of which was deduced from a talk with Miss Elizabeth Illsley, Evanston, Ill., recently head of the music department at Kobe college, Japan.

"Japanese girls are much better students than American girls," Miss Illsley said. "No discipline is needed; they are so eager to learn. They don't have much fun, though, except among themselves."

Unless a girl is converted to Christianity, she said, a college education does not interfere with her marriage, because it is already arranged by her parents.

"Japanese girls are quiet. Most of them have an earnest ambition to come to the United States and study. They don't want to stay, only to learn what they can and return to help their own women."

Although Miss Illsley would not say that Japanese women are gossips, she admitted that they serve tea from morning until night to any callers that drop in. And what is tea without gossip?—Milwaukee Journal.

THAT HARD GAME AT GLENS FALLS

Won by Kingston High in Tenth Inning Although Opposing Pitcher Struck Out 18 of Locals—Game at Poughkeepsie Saturday.

Jostling their way through the upstate batteries the Kingston High School nine Saturday defeated the Glens Falls High nine by the score of 6-5 in a thrilling ten inning game In the tenth, with two outs tallied against the high school nine, and with men on second and third Vogt advanced to the plate and zipped off a single that gave Kingston the right to the laurels of one of the hardest fought scholastic contests that has yet been played in Glens Falls.

In the second inning Vogt was walked, Case was daubed by a pitched ball. Then some radical pitches bought each across the finish line; the next three men struck out in bush-league style The Kingstonians took the field quite elated at the first blood and played heroically.

The Glens Falls men heard the call of duty in the fifth with Suckman starting things off with a nice hit. Freer drove to right and Newman teed off to left on a swift single which brought both of the men on base in home In the lucky seventh the upstaters tallied again because of the locals' failure to caddie the balls hit off to the foreign regions Kingston tallied again in the eighth making the score 4 up.

The fastest play of the locals' game was when a double play was pulled off. Bott fielded the grounder and tossed the ball to Stumpf who in turn hurled it at Vogt. Had the rally not been carried through the liner would have probably spelled disaster to the locals.

The ninth inning was uneventful, neither team scoring. Then in the tenth Caunitz left the fairway, so to speak, and drove into the rough which resulted in a run for Glens Falls Vogt favored the bleachers with a neat put-out from Sprague's fongo. Stumpf downed the fly offered by Gerston. Suckman, Akins and J Gerston selected a single apiece while Akins crossed the home mark Suckman, who was the second man to plate, went to third and Gerston hopped to second. Caunitz thus left with a nasty situation on his hands ended the inning by striking out Skane

The one-run lead looked to the Kingston boys like an insurmountable barrier, not because of an inherent cowardice but because of Dabler's way of dabbling about with strike-outs. Caunitz grounded to his rival moundsman and Stumpf made his teammates hilarious with his second hit of the game. Skane, who had a knack of aiding the locals when they were in a pinch erred and Muller got on first Dick Whiston advanced each man with a sacrifice. Vogt then singled and scored the "Eyesore" Muller and Stumpf.

From all appearances this Dabler is some pitcher He faced 36 men throughout the game and struck out 18 and walked but two On the whole however Caunitz had Dan two better, for not a single pass did he tear off Caunitz scored 8 strike-outs. The Kingston team played errorless baseball. The Glens Falls combination checked eleven hits which Caunitz kept scattered so that only five popflies resulted There was one thing that Dabler could not do and that was to keep the ball away from the locals bombardment when a hit meant a tally.

The Saturday win meant the second victory for the locals this season. The same will be played at Poughkeepsie next Saturday.

DIVORCE ACTION HELD OPEN FOR FURTHER TESTIMONY

The "Mrs. Sloat" Witness Knew Not One Who Was In Court.

A hearing was had before Judge Hasbrouck on Saturday in the action for divorce brought by Dorothy W. Sloat against Ronald L. Sloat The parties were married at Long Branch, N. J., where the plaintiff formerly lived. She now lives in Brooklyn Her husband is engaged in the automobile business at East Orange, N. J., his company being known as the S. B. R. Specialty Company. He has not defended the action.

The principal testimony was furnished by Herbert Braithwaite of Brooklyn, who is president of the Jenkins Elevator Company of New York city. In December, 1921, Braithwaite said, he rented an apartment at No. 431 West Forty-third street, New York city, and loaned the keys of the apartment to Sloat when the latter told him that he and his wife desired to attend the theatre in New York but did not wish to return to Brooklyn that night. The following morning he was introduced by Sloat to the supposed Mrs. Sloat, but she was not the same Mrs. Sloat who was appearing in court.

Judge Hasbrouck said he would require further testimony, which it is expected will be furnished by William Bobrick, who it was said also knew of Sloat's visit to the Forty-third street apartment, and the matter was held open. DuBois J. Gillette appeared for Mrs. Sloat.

Tardy Jurors Reprimanded.

Justice G. D. B. Hasbrouck, who is holding the May term of supreme court at Troy, Monday threatened several grand and trial jurors who failed to answer on time, when called by the court clerk to their summons to appear, with a fine. Justice Hasbrouck declared it is the duty of every person summoned to be on hand at the time directed in order to prevent delays in court procedure. Several jurors who appeared later were called to the bench to explain their absence at the opening of the court.

ANOTHER "WELCOME HOME" FOR ALBERT W. FELL.

Albert W. Fell has resigned his position as general manager of the Worcester (Mass.) Telegram-Gazette and returned to his first love, the Hudson Republican, as president. The latter paper prints the following letter

Editor, The Fell Republican.

I understand that there is going to be another dinner for A. W. Fell, given by the Republican staff

Now what I would like to know is, when are these Fell dinners going to cease? If I am not mistaken, this is the twenty-seventh time that the Republican staff has been called on to either wish him "bon voyage" or to welcome him back.

Isn't it about time some someone else was used as the subject of a get-together function? And isn't it also about time that he stayed put?
